Article 1 - Schedule

The League of Legends tournament will start at 10:00.

Players must be present, set up and ready to play before matches begin.

Any delay may result in a sporting penalty, loss of side selection, a forfeit loss or any other decision made by the referees depending on the impact on the tournament schedule.

Players are responsible for installing and updating their game before the tournament starts.

Any delay caused by installation, updates, connection issues or an unready setup may be sanctioned by the referees.

Article 2 - General tournament format

The League of Legends tournament is played in two phases:

- a group stage;
- a ranking bracket stage.

The tournament is planned for 16 teams, divided into 4 groups of 4 teams.

Each team will play at least:

- 3 group-stage matches;
- 3 bracket-stage matches.

As ranking finals are played as BO3, each team will play at least 6 matches, corresponding to at least 7 games played.

Article 3 - Group stage

The 16 teams are divided into 4 groups of 4 teams: Group A, Group B, Group C and Group D.

In each group, every team plays against the three other teams in its group.

All group-stage matches are played as BO1.

At the end of the group stage:

- teams ranked 1st and 2nd in each group qualify for the Main Bracket;
- teams ranked 3rd and 4th in each group qualify for the Consolation Bracket.

Article 4 - Group-stage tiebreakers

Team rankings in the group stage are determined according to the following criteria, in this order:

- number of wins;
- head-to-head result between the teams concerned;
- shortest average win time;
- tiebreaker match if the schedule allows it;
- referee decision if no criterion clearly separates the teams.

In case of a multi-team tie, referees will apply these criteria in a way that establishes a coherent and fair ranking.

The organization reserves the right to adapt the tiebreaker criteria if an exceptional situation requires it.

Article 5 - Main Bracket

The Main Bracket brings together the teams ranked 1st and 2nd in each group.

It determines the top placements of the League of Legends tournament.

The Main Bracket is played as a full ranking bracket.

Teams winning their first bracket match continue in the upper path of the Main Bracket.

Teams losing their first bracket match continue in the lower path of the Main Bracket.

A team sent to the lower path cannot return to the upper path. It continues playing for the ranking of its path.

Article 6 - Main Bracket seeding

The initial seeding of the Main Bracket is organized to avoid, as much as possible, immediate matches between teams from the same group.

The planned seeding is as follows:

- Match P1: 1st Group A vs 2nd Group B;
- Match P2: 1st Group C vs 2nd Group D;
- Match P3: 1st Group B vs 2nd Group A;
- Match P4: 1st Group D vs 2nd Group C.

The organization reserves the right to adapt the seeding if necessary to avoid inconsistency, organizational conflict or an exceptional situation.

Article 7 - Consolation Bracket

The Consolation Bracket brings together the teams ranked 3rd and 4th in each group.

It allows teams not qualified for the Main Bracket to continue the tournament and play for a dedicated ranking.

The Consolation Bracket is played as a full ranking bracket.

Teams winning their first bracket match continue in the upper path of the Consolation Bracket.

Teams losing their first bracket match continue in the lower path of the Consolation Bracket.

A team sent to the lower path cannot return to the upper path. It continues playing for the ranking of its path.

Article 8 - Consolation Bracket seeding

The initial seeding of the Consolation Bracket is organized to avoid, as much as possible, immediate matches between teams from the same group.

The planned seeding is as follows:

- Match C1: 3rd Group A vs 4th Group B;
- Match C2: 3rd Group C vs 4th Group D;
- Match C3: 3rd Group B vs 4th Group A;
- Match C4: 3rd Group D vs 4th Group C.

The organization reserves the right to adapt the seeding if necessary to avoid inconsistency, organizational conflict or an exceptional situation.

Article 9 - Match format

Unless otherwise indicated by the organization, matches are played as follows:

- group-stage matches: BO1;
- bracket matches before finals: BO1;
- all finals and ranking third-place finals: BO3.

The following are notably considered finals or ranking third-place finals:

- the upper-path final of the Main Bracket;
- the upper-path third-place final of the Main Bracket;
- the lower-path final of the Main Bracket;
- the lower-path third-place final of the Main Bracket;
- the upper-path final of the Consolation Bracket;
- the upper-path third-place final of the Consolation Bracket;
- the lower-path final of the Consolation Bracket;
- the lower-path third-place final of the Consolation Bracket.

The organization may adapt the match format if the schedule, a significant delay or a technical constraint requires it.

Brackets before finals: BO1

Finals and 3rd-place matches: BO3

The organizers may adjust the seeding or match format in exceptional circumstances.

Article 10 - Game creation

Matches are played in custom games on League of Legends.

Lobbies will be created according to instructions provided by the organization or referees.

If tournament codes are available, they may be provided to captains. Captains will then have to join the lobby and invite their teammates.

If no tournament code is used, captains must create or join custom games according to the instructions given by referees.

Players must not start champion select until both teams have confirmed that they are ready.

Article 11 - Draft and champion select

The use of an external draft software or tool is allowed only if both teams agree.

If both teams do not agree, the draft is done directly in the League of Legends client.

Champion select may only begin when:

- both teams are present in the lobby;
- both teams have confirmed that they are ready;
- the referee or organization has authorized the match start, if necessary.

Unless otherwise decided by the referees, all champions, summoner spells, runes and items available in the game are allowed.

In case of a major bug, exceptional balance issue or known exploit, referees may temporarily ban the use of a champion, item, rune, spell or specific mechanic.

Article 12 - Side selection

In the group stage, side selection is determined by a best-of-3 rock-paper-scissors between the captains of both teams.

In the bracket stage, the team with the higher group-stage ranking chooses its side for the first game.

In case of BO3:

- the team with the higher group-stage ranking chooses its side for the first game;
- the loser of the previous game chooses its side for the next game.

In case of equal ranking or an unforeseen situation, referees will determine side selection by draw or by the method they consider fairest.

Article 13 - Results

At the end of each game, captains must notify the designated League of Legends tournament staff to report the score.

Referees may request proof of the result, including:

- screenshot of the end-of-game screen;
- validation by both captains;
- validation by a present referee;
- match history if available.

Any score error must be reported as quickly as possible.

Once the next match has started, a late dispute may be refused if it disrupts the smooth running of the tournament.

Article 14 - Delays, warnings and forfeits

Teams must be ready to play at the time indicated by the organization or referees.

In case of delay, the following sanctions may be applied:

- from 5 minutes late: warning;
- from 10 minutes late: possible forfeit, at the referees' discretion.

A team accumulating three warnings during the tournament may be declared forfeit for the relevant match or sanctioned by the referees.

A team that is absent, incomplete or not ready after the deadline set by referees may be declared forfeit.

The organization reserves the right to adapt sanctions depending on the situation, especially if the delay is caused by a technical issue outside the players' control.

Article 15 - Pauses, disconnections and technical issues

In case of disconnection, crash, bug or technical issue, the affected team must immediately notify a referee.

If pausing is possible, it must be used only in cases of genuine necessity.

Any abusive, unjustified pause or pause used to disrupt the pace of the match may be sanctioned.

Referees may decide, depending on the situation:

- to resume the game;
- to remake the game;
- to validate the result;
- to apply a penalty;
- to declare a team forfeit;
- to make any other decision adapted to the smooth running of the tournament.

No remake can be automatically demanded by a team. The decision belongs to the referees.

Article 16 - Spectators and outside communication

Spectators are not allowed in lobbies unless explicitly approved by the organization.

Only referees, organization members or authorized persons may join a game as spectators.

Any communication with a person outside the team during a game is prohibited, unless authorized by the organization or required for a technical reason validated by a referee.

Players must not look at opponents' screens or attempt to obtain information outside what is visible in their own game.

Article 17 - Accounts, smurfs and real level

Players must use their personal account or an account declared to the organization.

The use of a secondary account is allowed only if the player honestly declares their real level.

Any false statement regarding level, rank, player identity or account used may result in a sanction.

The organization may request additional information to assess the real level of a player or team.

Article 18 - Cheating and prohibited behaviour

Any form of cheating is strictly prohibited.

The following are notably prohibited:

- cheat software;
- scripts;
- intentional bug exploitation;
- unauthorized outside communication;
- deliberately looking at opponents' screens;
- sharing information obtained unfairly;
- identity fraud;
- using another player's account without authorization;
- any action granting an unfair advantage.

In case of confirmed or suspected cheating, referees may apply one or more sanctions:

- warning;
- game loss;
- match loss;
- result modification or cancellation;
- exclusion from the tournament;
- ban from future editions.

Referee and organization decisions are final during the event.

Article 19 - Prizes and rewards

The main prizes of the League of Legends tournament will be awarded to the team winning the upper-path final of the Main Bracket.

Additional prizes may be distributed to other teams only if officially announced by the organization.

The exact prize distribution will be communicated by the organization.

No team may demand a prize that has not been officially announced by the organization.

Article 20 - Referee decisions

Referees are responsible for enforcing these rules, the general event rules and the instructions given by the organization.

Decisions made by referees during the tournament are final in order to ensure the smooth running of the competition.

Any dispute must be raised calmly by the team captain with a referee or League of Legends manager.

Any abusive, repeated or disrespectful dispute may result in a sanction.
